

High Five for the Future

Make a pledge toward a more sustainable world!

Try this!

Think of something you can do to help create a more sustainable world, now or in the future. Write it down or draw a picture of it on the whiteboard.

Take your photo in front of the backdrop. You can share your idea and your photo on social media! #high5future

In your photo, you can hold up the whiteboard, or give a high five to a kid from the future! Sometimes people give each other a high five when they've done a good job. When you do something sustainable, it helps kids today and kids in the future! What can you do now that would get a high five from a future kid?

We need new sustainability solutions ... and we need your help finding them!

Being a change agent involves asking questions and taking actions. As individuals and as a society, we can reflect on the kind of world we create through our decisions and choices.

There are many ways we can help our communities be sustainable.

Sustainability means healthy people, communities, and environments, now and in the future. Working together, we can find innovative ways to achieve global goals such as:

- Helping people move out of poverty and get good jobs
- Making sure that everyone has food and clean water
- Ensuring healthy lives and well-being at all ages
- Providing quality education for everyone
- Generating affordable, reliable, and sustainable energy
- Building safe, resilient, and sustainable cities
- Taking care of our natural environments and oceans
- Promoting just, peaceful, and inclusive societies

We all have a role in building a more sustainable future!

Kids in the ReThink club in New Orleans advise their school system on ways to be more sustainable. In response to the 2010 oil spill along the Gulf Coast, they recommended that their schools be oil-free (not dependent on oil for energy).

Student ReThinkers in the New Orleans Rethink club