

nano spot

A nanometer is one billionth of a meter.

What if traveling to space was as easy as taking an elevator?

It may sound like science fiction, but scientists are working with carbon nanotubes to create the strong, lightweight fibers needed to build an elevator reaching 22,236 miles above the Earth!

<http://bit.ly/nanoelevator>

Graphics created by the Science Center of Iowa